

My home DSL line is provided through a small ISP that provides a valuable service compared to subscribing through a larger telco. The ISP's support is excellent, pricing fair, and in comparison, when I tried to go through SBC directly, almost gave up in frustration. My understanding is that the BellSouth petition would make the competitive landscape for such ISPs much more difficult, and this makes me unhappy.